

Bihar is the second largest jute producing state of the country. Maximum production of jute in the state comes from Purnea, Saharsa, Darbhanga, Muzaffarpur, East Champaran, Munger and Bhagalpur districts. Jute industry is a raw material driven industry. Since this industry requires clean water and abundant cheap labour, these areas have most of this industry. The reason behind is availability of require component. In the map of Bihar, these industries are in north-east Bihar plains. Darbhanga and Samastipur are in north- east Bihar plains. Darbhanga and Samastipur are in central north Bihar plains. Thus, the closest answer is option (b).
