In the summer of 1920 in the villages of Taluqdari Oudh, Kisan meetings called by village panchayats became frequent. The names of Jhinguri Singh and Durgapal Singh were associated with this development. But soon another leader became famous by the name of Baba Ramchandra, who not only emerged as the leader but also played an important role in the Movement.

Baba Ramchandra, a Brahmin from Maharashtra, was a wanderer who had left home at the age of thirteen.

(ii) Oppression by Thikedars in charge of revenue collection; and
(iii) The practice of share-rents.
The meetings of the Eka or the Unity Movement involved a symbolic religious ritual in which the assembled peasants vowed that they would:

- i. Pay only the recorded rent but would pay it on time;
- ii. Not leave when evicted;
- iii. Refuse to do forced labour;
