Mughal Administration

*During the Mughal administration, the district was known as the 'Sarkar'. Each Suba (province) was divided into several Sarkars (districts) for the convenience of governance. Sarkar was further divided into 'Pargana' or 'Mahal'. The leading officers of each Sarkar were - Faujdar, Amalguzar, Qazi, Kotwal, Bitikchi and Khajandar.

*Mir Bakhshi was the head of the military department during the reign of Mughals. He also fixed the monthly salary of soldiers by signing a certificate called 'Sarkhat'. Apart from this, there were Bakhshi's in the provinces who worked under the control of Mir Bakhshi. *In the Mughal regime, Mir Bakshi supervised the land revenue officials and was also responsible for the salary of the military department. *Sir Jadunath Sarkar stated Mir Bakshi as Vetanadhihari (Pay Master). The work as Pay Master was not regular and permanent for Mir Bakshi. The duty of the Pay Master was of Diwaan-i-Tan. During the Mughal period, in addition to the soldiers of Mansabdars, there were others two different types of cavalry who were called 'Ahadi' and 'Dakhili'. *'Ahadi' were recruited by the king and was used as his bodyguards. *'Dakhili' soldiers were also recruited by the Emperor although they were kept in the service of Mansabdars. *The prostitutes were expelled from the city and settled at some other place named 'Shaitanpuri'. *Akbar implemented the dual system of 'Zat' and 'Sawar' in the 40th year. *The word 'Maal' in the Mughal administrative terminology, was related to land revenue. *Tobacco was brought to India by the Portuguese in 1605 A.D. After that tobacco became very popular in the public of India. In a few years, the habit of smoking tobacco became so prevalent among people that to avoid this harmful habit. In 1617 A.D., Jahangir prohibited it. He issued an order to ban it in 1617 A.D.

*The Mughal administration issued grants as Madad-i-Mash for the scholars and also to the religious persons. It was also called 'Sayuragal'. *All the donated lands were inspected by 'Sadra' and the Sadra also had the duty to keep an eye on the donation that they are not misused. These lands were not transferrable and the grantee possessed a right of inheritance over it. During the Mughal period, the mint officer was called Daroga. Gold, silver and copper coins were minted. Akbar issued the coins with figures of Ram and Sita and 'Ram Siya' inscribed on them in Devnagari. The silver coin was called 'Rupiya'. 'Daam' was copper coin introduced by Akbar.

*Jahangir marked his figure on his coins and named Nur Jahan, along with his name on some coins. Some of the coins were marked with his image holding cup of alcohol in hand.

*The meaning of word 'Bantai' during the medieval period was a system of calculating revenue in which real produce was distributed between state and peasants.

- (d) Effecting clean administration

I.A.S. (Pre) 1996

Ans. (d)

Akbar introduced a well-organised system in the military and civil service of the empire which came to be known as Mansabdari system. Very soon, this system became the main basis of the military and civil administration of the Mughals. The main intention to introduce Mansabdari was to provide a clean and better administration.

10. Who was responsible for the smooth functioning of the Mughal Mansabdari system?

- (a) Vakil
- (b) Wazir
- (c) Mir Bakshi
- (d) Sadr

Jharkhand P.C.S. (Pre) 2023

Ans. (c)

Mir Bakshi was responsible for the smooth functioning of the Mughal Mansabdari system. The Mansabdari system was the administrative system introduced by Akbar in Mughal Empire. The word 'Mansab' is of Arabic origin meaning rank or position. Hence Mansabdari was a system of ranking the government officials and determining their civil & military duties, along with their remuneration. The recruitment and promotion of the Mansabdars was in the hands of the Emperor who could also dismiss them at will. Mostly the recruitment of the Mansabdars was done on the recommendation of Mir Bakshi.

11. Which one of the following is not true about the Mughal Mansabdari System ?

- (a) There were 33 divisions.
- (b) They got conditional or Mashrut rank.
- (c) Their 'Sawar' rank could exceed the 'Zat' rank.
- (d) All civil and military officers were given mansabs.

U.P.P.C.S. (Mains) 2009

Ans. (c)

Mansab meant rank or status. Mansabdars or officeholders were divided into 33 classes and were paid in cash according to their respective grades. There were exceptions to this rule, particularly when the mansabdar was serving in a difficult terrain amidst the rebels. In such cases, the state often increased the sawar rank without altering the zat rank. Obviously, the system was not a static one. It changed to meet the circumstances. Thus, reform was the use of conditional rank (Mashrut), which meant an 'increase of sawar rank for a temporary period. So, option (c) is the correct answer.

- 2. Land assignments to Jagirdars were hereditary had revenue rights of Zamindars were not hereditary.

Select the correct answer using code given below :

- (a) 1 only
- (b) 2 only
- (c) Both 1 and 2
- (d) Neither 1 nor 2

I.A.S. (Pre) 2019

Ans. (d)

During Akbar's period, all the territory was broadly divided into two : Khalisa & Jagir. The revenue from the first went to imperial treasury & that from jagir was assigned to jagirdars in lieu of their salary in cash according to their rank. Right to collect revenue was to utilize the same for their salary & to meet their military obligation. The judicial & police functions were performed locally by Zamindars. An important feature of the Jagir System was shifting of jagir-holders from one jagir to another for administrative reasons. This system of transfers checked the jagirdars from developing local roots. Thus, jagirs were transferable & could be seized too. Zamindars, on the other hand, were hereditary. The Zamindars were present in practically every part of the Mughal Empire & held the most significant position in the agrarian structure of Mughal India. The word Zamindar is derived from two Persian words -Zamin (land) & dar (holder).
