Queen Victoria declared reorganisation of the army on the basis of separation and conflict policy.

Other Civil Uprisings

*The Revolt of 1857 was followed by Indigo Revolt (1859-60), Sanyasi Revolt (1763-1800), Santhal Revolt (1855-56) and Pabna Uprising (1873-76) were other major uprisings of that time.

Indigo revolt was started in Govindpur village of Nadia district in West Bengal. Farmers there stopped the Indigo cultivation under the leadership of two workers Digambar Vishwas and Vishnu Vishwas who had once worked for an Indigo cultivator. By 1860, Indigo movement had spread to Nadia, Pabana, Khulna, Dhaka, Malda, Dinajpur etc. The intelligentsia of Bengal through public meetings, journals and articles in newspaper popularized the movement. Harishchandra Mukherjee, the editor of 'Hindu Patriot', played a major role in this. Through 'Neel Darpan', Dinabandhu Mitra openly visualised the atrocities of Indigo plantation owners on the farmers there. 'Vande Mataram' song is derived from the famous Novel Anandmath written by Bankim Chandra Chatterjee. The plot of this novel is based on Sanyasi Revolt. 'Vande Mataram' was sung for the first time in Congress session of Calcutta in 1896.

Wahabi Movement which continued from the 4th to 7th decade of the 19th century provided an organized and stiff resistance to Britishers. Syed Ahmad Barelvi of Raebareli was the proponent of this movement. He was inspired by Abdul Wahab of Arabia but, in India, the movement was majorly inspired by Shah Waliullah of Delhi. By the efforts of Syed Ahmad Barelvi, this ideology soon spread to Northwest frontier provinces, Bengal, Bihar, Kabul and Central provinces. He captured Peshawar for some time in 1830 but he was killed in the battle of Balakot (1831). He introduced coins with his name in Peshawar. After the death of Syed Ahmad Barelvi, Patna became centre of this movement. During this period the leadership was provided by Maullavi Qasim, Vilayat Ali, Inayat Ali, Ahmadullah etc. After Patna, the branches of this movement were established in Hyderabad, Madras, Bengal, U.P. and Bombay.

Kuka Movement is more or less similar to the Wahabi Movement. Both started as a religious movements but later on they got transformed into political movements, which had the common goal of excluding Britishers from India. In 1840s, Bhagat Jawaharmal who was mainly known as Siyan Sahab started this movement from Western Punjab. The main objective of the movement was to cleanse the Sikh religion of all superstitious and evil practices and to make it pure. In 1872 the leader of this movement Ram Singh was exiled to Rangoon where he died in 1885.

Pagal Panth was a semi-religious group founded by Karim/Karam Shah. Tribal peasants organised themselves under Karim/Karam Shah's son, Tipu, to fight the oppression of Zamindars. Tipu captured Sherpur in 1825 A.D. and made himself the king. He became so powerful that he started exercising sovereign powers like appointing a judge, a magistrate and a collector. The Faraizis were the followers of a Muslim sect founded by Haji Shariatullah of Faridpur in Eastern Bengal. They advocated radical religious, social and political changes. Shariatullah's son Dudu Miyan organised his followers with the aim of expelling the English intruders from Bengal. This revolt continued from 1818 to 1862 A.D., at the end, the followers of this sect got merged into Wahabi Movement. Wellesley in 1805 compelled Maharaja of Travancore (Kerala) to accept the subsidiary alliance. Maharaja was very unhappy with this alliance and was hesitating towards completing some of its terms. The behaviour of the English resident was rude and was full of hatred as a result of this Diwan Velu Thampi with the support of Nair Battalion revolted against them. Vasudev Balwant Phadake (1845-83 A.D.) was one of the leading earliest Indian revolutionaries who organized the Ramosi tribes and trained them into a fighting force. He founded Ramosi farmers group. Gadakar were the hereditary workers on the Maratha forts. They faced an exploitative collection of land revenue, they were expelled from the Maratha Army and their land was given to the guardianship of Mamlatdars. These situations made them to revolt in 1844 A.D. at Kolhapur. The Khonds tribes of the hilly tract extending from Tamil Nadu to Bengal and central India, they were virtually independent. They rebelled against the British from 1846 to 1855 AD. Chakra Bisoi, a young king, led the Khonds who were joined by the Ghumsar, Kalahandi and other tribals to oppose the abolition of human sacrifices (Mariah), the introduction of new taxes and the entry of Zamindars into their areas. Khonds opposed the establishment of Mariah Agency. Kol Revolt was led by Buddho Bhagat in Chhotanagpur area in 1831-32 A.D. This movement continued intermittently till 1848 when this revolt was finally suppressed. Waghera Revolt in Baroda was against English. It took place in 1818-1819.

The Chronological order of the main revolts in India before 1857 is –

1. Bengal Sepoy Mutiny (1764), in which a battalion in the Army of Hector Munro revolted and went to the side of Mir Qasim in the battlefield of Buxar.
2. Vellore Sepoy Mutiny (1806 A.D.)
3. Revolt of Kutch (1819-31 A.D.)
4. Kol Revolt (1831-32 A.D.)
5. Santhal Revolt (1855-56 A.D.)

 In 1855-56 A.D., Santhal was an important tribal revolt in which we see a lot of tribal anger and hatred against the Britishers. The Revolt took place in the Damin-e-Koh area between Bhagalpur and Rajmahal hills. Moneylenders and Britishers were exploiting them together. Interest ranging from 50 to 500% was charged from the Santhal borrowers. Sidhu, Kanhu, Chand and Bhairav were four brothers who led this revolt. Sidhu once said to officials, "God said to me that this country is not of bosses. God will fight from our side and in this way, these bosses and soldiers will fight with God." The revolt continued till 1856 A.D., at last, all the leaders were captured and the revolt was suppressed. In 1855 A.D., Santhals revolted in Bhaginidih taluka of Bhagalpur. Santhals defeated the Army of Britishers led by Major Burrough. Finally Commissioner of Bhagalpur Brown and Major General Lloyd ruthlessly suppressed the revolt.

Bhil revolts - Bhils community which lived on the western coast of Khandesh revolted against English in 1818-31 A.D. Officials blamed Peshwa Bajirao II and his representative Trimbakji Dangle for inciting the Bhils to revolt. In reality, the agricultural hardship and the fear of the new English government were the main reasons for this revolt. In 1825 A.D., under the leadership of Sevaram, Bhils revolted again. Britishers ruthlessly suppressed the revolt for the second time with some efforts.

Rampa Rebellion - Rampa hilly area lies north of the Godavari river in Andhra Pradesh. The Tribal revolt was against the exploitation by Moneylenders and the Forest Acts. * The second half of 19th Century, Surji Bhagat and Govind Guru named Social reformers tried to bring some reforms in the tribal communities residing in Mewar of Rajasthan, Dungarpur, Banswada, Pratapgarh, Sirohi, Pali, etc. Guru Govind (also called as Lasodhiya) established 'Samp Sabha' in 1883 A.D. with an aim to organize Bhils. He is also called as the propounder of Lasodhiya Movement. Birsa Munda led the Revolt of Munda tribes in 1899-1900 A.D. Collective farming prevailed in the Munda community but zamindars, contractors, moneylenders, etc. attacked this tradition to carve out their own interests. Munda chief fought for 30 years to preserve their traditional farming. This revolt is also known as "Sardari fight". In 1895, Birsa declared himself the Messenger of God. The revolt was most famous among the revolts of this time. The revolt started against the attempt to replace the traditional collective farming practices with the Zamindari or Individual ownership practices. Khunt Katti or Mundari was the traditional collective farming practice of Mundas. But with the passage of time, Birsa transformed this revolt into a religious and political movement. He is called 'Jagat Pita' or 'Dharti Aaba'. He said 'we will fight with non-tribals and will colour this land red with their blood like a Red Flag'. In February, 1900 A.D., Birsa was arrested and died in prison in June 1900 A.D. The area between Ranchi and Bhagalpur was under his influence. He called for the worship of one god 'Sing Bonga' renouncing the worship of other gods. Thakkar Bapa used word 'Adivasi' for the tribal population. He was the General Secretary of 'Harijan Sevak Sangh'. Hauz(Ho) Revolt of 1820-21 A.D. took place in Santhal subdivision of Bihar (Now Jharkhand). Khairwar tribal movement in 1874 A.D. was led by Bhagirath Manjhi. *Surendra Sai the claimant to throne of Sambalpur led the movement against British. In 1862, he surrendered. Moplah Revolt took place in 1921 A.D. in Malabar area. Here the Muslims were the major sharecropper tenants and Hindus were Zamindars. The revolt took place due to exploitation by Zamindars. Ahom Revolt (1828 A.D.) was led by Gomdhar Kunwar. Tana Bhagat Movement was started in 1914 at Chhotanagpur by Oraon tribes. Jatra Bhagat, Balram Bhagat and Devmenia Bhagat led this revolt. Jadonang was the first tribal leader inspired by Mahatma Gandhi and his philosophy. He was a pioneer freedom fighter for Naga community in Manipur.

The Uprising of the Bhils, 1818-31 A.D.:

The Bhils were mostly concentrated in the hill ranges of Khandesh. The British occupation of Khandesh in 1818 enraged the Bhils because they were suspicious of outsiders’ incursions into their territory. Moreover, it was believed that Trimbakji, rebel minister of Baji Rao II, instigated the Bhils against the British occupation of Khandesh. There was a general insurrection in 1819 A.D. and the Bhils in several small groups ravaged the plains. There were similar types of insurrection quite often by the Bhil Chiefs against the British. The British government used its military force to suppress the rebels and at the same time, tried to win them over through various conciliatory measures. But the British measures failed to bring the Bhils to their side.

The Kol Uprising, 1831-32 A.D.:

The Kols of Singhbhum enjoyed independent power under their Chiefs. They successfully resisted attempts made by the Raja of Chota Nagpur and Mayurbhanj to subdue them. The rebellion spread over Ranchi, Hazaribagh, Palamau and Manbhum. The target of the attack was the settlers from other regions whose houses were burnt and property looted. The insurrection was ruthlessly suppressed by the British militia.

Rampa Rebellion of 1879 A.D.

After the passing of the 1882 Madras Forest Act, its restrictions on the free movement of tribal peoples in the forest prevented them from engaging in their traditional “Podu” agricultural system, which involved shifting cultivation in northern areas of Godavari area in Andhra Pradesh.

Santhal Rebellion, 1855 -56 A.D.

39th B.P.S.C. (Pre) 1994

Munda Rebellion was one of the most prominent 19th-Century tribal rebellions in the subcontinent. Birsa Munda led this movement in the region in 1899-1900 A.D. The Ulgulan, meaning 'Great Tumult,' sought to establish an independent Munda Raj. The Mundas traditionally enjoyed a preferential rent rate as the Khuntkatti or the original clearer of the forest. But in the course of the 19th century, they had seen this Khuntkatti land system being eroded by the jaghirdars and thikedars coming as merchants and moneylenders. In 1895 A.D., Birsa claiming to have seen a vision of God, proclaimed himself a prophet with miraculous healing powers. Thousands flocked to hear the 'new word' of Birsa with its prophecy of an imminent deluge. The new prophet became a critic of the traditional tribal customs, religious beliefs, and practices. He called upon the Mundas to fight against superstition, give up animal sacrifice, stop taking intoxicants, wear the sacred thread and retain the tribal tradition of worship in the Sarna or the sacred grove. It was essentially a revivalist movement, which sought to purge Munda society of all foreign elements and restore its pristine character. Christianity influenced the movement as well and it used both Hindu-Christian idioms to create the Munda ideology and worldview. On Christmas Eve 1899 A.D., the Mundas shot arrows and tried to burn down churches over an area covering six police stations in the districts of Ranchi and Singhbhum. Next, in January 1900, the police stations were targeted and there were rumours that Birsa's followers would attack Ranchi on 8th January, leading to panic there. However, on 9th January, the rebels were defeated. Birsa was captured and died in jail. Nearly 350 Mundas were put on trial, and three of them were hanged and 44 transported for life.
