

Cripps Mission (1942)

Considering the rising power of Japan, international community, especially United States of America, China and Australia pressured Britain to grant freedom to India. As a result, Stafford Cripps arrived in India in March, 1942 A.D. to negotiate with Indian politicians.

After reaching India in March, 1942 A.D., Stafford Cripps presented a proposal whose major recommendations were:

- i- After Second World War India should be given a Dominion Status and which would not be subject to any external authority.
- ii- Indians should be given the right to form their own Constitution for which the Council of Constitution-making body will be initiated after the War.
- iii- Any provinces not agreeing to the new Constitution would have the right to keep themselves out of the proposed Union. Such provinces will be entitled to constitute their own separate Constitution.
- iv- During the Second World War, an interim government comprising of different parties of India would be constituted. However, defense and external affairs would be the sole responsibility of the Viceroy.
