Trade monopoly of East India company in India was abolished except trade in tea and china through charter Act of 1813. Through this Act, sovereignty of British crown over Indian company territories was asserted.

Thus statement (1) & (2) are true but statement (3) is not correct because This Act kept rights over the territory and revenue under the East India Company for the next 20 years. The Indian revenue was brought under the direct control of British Parliament through- The Act of 1858, when the designation of Secretary of State was made under the British cabinet Minister and specially, to help him in Revenue administration, the Council of India was organised.

8. Which Act for the first time made it possible for Indians to take some share in the administration of their country?

- (a) Charter Act, 1833
(b) Charter Act, 1853
(c) Government of India Act, 1858
(d) Indian Councils Act, 1861

Section 87 was one of the most important sections of the Charter Act, 1833. It stated that no person of India or the Crown would be debarred from any post or service under the Company on the grounds of religion, place of birth, descent or colour or any of them. Subsequently, section 87 of the Act, 1833 became the foundation for the demand of the participation of Indians in the administration during the political movement.

Acts Passed under the British Crown (1858-1947)

*The British Crown decided to assume sovereignty over India from the East India Company by the Government of India Act 1858. *The name of the post of Governor General was renamed as the 'Viceroy' of India. He became the direct representative of the British Crown. *Lord Canning became the first Viceroy of India. * The Board of Control and Court of Directors came to an end. A new post of Secretary of State of India was created. *He was assisted by a council of 15 members. He received the powers so long enjoyed by the Court of Directors and Board of Control. *The council of India was to be advisory in nature, in most cases the initiatives and the final decision remained with the Secretary of State for India. Indian Council Act 1861, initiated the participation of the Indian representatives in law making process. *The Act restored the legislative powers of making and amending laws to the provinces of Madras and Bombay, thus initiating the process of decentralization.*The Act empowered the Viceroy to issue ordinances in case of emergency which were not to remain in force for more than six months.

Indian Council Act 1892, increased the number of non-official members in both the Central and Provincial Legislative councils but maintained the official majority in them. *The Indian members were granted the right to ask questions and discuss the budget in the legislative council. *This Act introduced the principle of election, in a limited sense, though the word 'election' was very carefully avoided in it. Indian Councils Act 1909 is also known as Morley-Minto Reforms. *It provided (for the first time) for the association of Indians with the executive councils of Viceroy & Governors. Satyendra Prasad Sinha became the first Indian to join the Viceroy's Executive council. He was appointed as a law member. *The functions and size of legislatures both at the centre and in the provinces were enlarged. The members of council were given the right of discussion and asking Supplementary questions. The Act provided separate electorates for Muslims. Hence Lord Minto came to be known as The father of the communal electorate.

Government of India Act 1919 is known by the name of 'Montague Chelmsford Reforms'. *This Act, for the first time, adopted the Direct Election system. *Principle of communal representation was extended by providing separate electorates for Sikhs, Indian Christians, Europeans and Anglo - Indians. It introduced Bicameralism at Central level. *It separated various subjects, as the Central and provincial subjects. The Bicameral Central Legislature could make law for the whole of British India. *It introduced dyarchy in the provinces. *Provincial subjects were further divided into two parts : transferred and reserved. For the first time, the term, responsible Government was used. *Under this Act, a commission was to be constituted after 10 years which will review the working of this Act and present its report. In November 1927 (i.e. 2 years before the schedule), the British Government announced the appointment of a seven member statutory commission under the chairmanship of Simon to report on the condition of India under its new constitution. The commission was hence called Simon commission. Government of India Act 1935 provided for the establishment of an All India Federation consisting of provinces and Princely states as units. *It introduced dyarchy at the centre and abolished the same in the provinces. *It provided for the establishment of a Reserve Bank of India to control the currency and credit of the country. *Principle of Communal representation was further extended by providing the separate electorates for Scheduled Castes, women and labourers. *A Federal Court was set up in 1937 through this Act. *This Act separated Burma from the British India and established two new provinces-Sindh and Odisha. *It introduced bicameralism in 6 out of 11 provinces. Indian Independence Act of 1947 declared India to be an Independent and Sovereign nation on 15 August 1947. *It abolished the office of Viceroy and, a Governor General was appointed for each dominion. *It dropped the title of 'Emperor of India' from the royal titles of the King of England.

The Indian Councils Act 1861, transformed the Viceroy's Executive Council into a miniature cabinet running on the portfolio system. All the five members were assigned a department out of Revenue, Finance, Law, Home and Military, as the head for the executive functions. In 1874, a sixth member was added to the executive council for Public Works Department. For legislative works, number of additional members was determined to be minimum 6 and maximum 12, which were to be nominated by viceroy for 2 years. The British Parliament passed the Indian Council Act, 1892. It gathered the royal assent on June 20, 1892 and was commenced on February 3, 1893. Thus statement (i) is wrong. The number of additional members elected to the Governor-General's Council was increased to a minimum of ten to maximum sixteen members. Among these additional members atleast half had to be non-official. Thus as per rule, of this Act, of these additional members, 6 were official and 10 were non-official. In non-official members both Indian and European were included. Thus statement (ii) is wrong. In this Act, right to discuss the budget was given but members were not given the right to ask supplementary questions. Thus statement (iii) is also wrong.

Ans. (c)

The Government of India Act, 1919 was passed by the British Parliament. The Act embodied the reforms recommended in the report of the Secretary of State for India, Edwin Montagu, and the Viceroy Lord Chelmsford. This Act provided for the introduction of a dual form of Government in provinces known as Dyarchy. The Subjects of administration were divided into two categories - Reserved and Transferred.

Reserved subjects were kept under provincial governors and their executive council, while transferred subjects were kept under ministers responsible to the provincial legislature. The distribution of powers between centre and provinces was done in the form of Federal and Provincial subjects.

As far as the question of a separate electoral system for Muslims is concerned, the provision had already been made by the Act of 1909. The Government of India Act, 1919 continued this provision and also extended it to Sikhs, Europeans, Indian-Christians, and Anglo-Indians.

11. In the context of Indian history, the principle of 'Dyarchy (diarchy)' refers to

- (a) Division of the central legislature into two houses.
- (b) Introduction of double government i.e., Central and State Governments.
- (c) Having two sets of rulers; one in London and another in Delhi.
- (d) Division of the subjects delegated to the provinces into two categories.

I.A.S. (Pre) 2017

Ans. (d)

Dyarchy is derived from the Greek word 'di-arche', which means double rule. In the context of Indian history, the principle of Dyarchy refers to the division of the provincial subjects into 'reserved' and 'transferred' categories. Comparatively important subjects (reserved subjects) such as police, jail, justice, finance and irrigation were to be administered by the governor and his executive council without being responsible to the legislative council. Subjects of lesser importance (transferred subjects) such as education, agriculture, local self-government, etc., were to be administered by the governor with the aid of ministers responsible to the legislative council.

12. In the Government of India Act 1919, the functions of Provincial Government were divided into "Reserved" and "Transferred" subjects. Which of the following were treated as "Reserved" subjects?

- 1. Administration of Justice
- 2. Local Self-Government
- 3. Land Revenue
- 4. Police

Select the correct answer using the code given below:

- (b) 2, 3 and 4
- (c) 1, 3 and 4
- (d) 1, 2 and 4

I.A.S. (Pre) 2022

Ans. (c)

The Government of India Act, 1919 introduced diarchy at the provincial level. The provincial governments' subjects were separated into two divisions : reserved subjects and transferred subjects. Subjects under the Transferred List are Local self- government, public works, Health and sanitation, Industrial research and Education. The subjects included under Reserved List are Judicial Administration, press, Land Revenues, Forests, Water, Labour Disputes Settlement, Agriculture Loans, Police and Prisons. Thus, option (c) is correct.

13. Which Act established the Dyarchy system in the Provinces?

- (a) The government of India Act of 1935
- (b) The government of India Act of 1919
- (c) The Indian Council Act of 1861
- (d) Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909

M.P.P.C.S. (Pre.) 2022

Ans. (b)

The Government of India Act of 1919, also known as the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms, was passed by the British Parliament with the objective of the gradual introduction of responsible Government in India. It introduced a system of dual government at the provincial level. Subjects were divided into two categories. (1) Reserved subjects: These included important areas like law and order, finance, land revenue, and irrigation. These remained under the direct control of the British Governor and his Executive Council. (2) Transferred subjects: These included less critical areas like education, health, public works, and agriculture. This dual scheme of governance was known as 'dyarchy'-a term derived from the Greek word diarche, which means double rule. It also introduced, for the first time, bicameralism and direct elections in the country.

14. The Indian Legislature was made bicameral for the first time by

- (a) Indian Council Act of 1892
- (b) Indian Council Act of 1909
- (c) The Government of India Act of 1919
- (d) The Government of India Act of 1935

U.P.P.C.S. (Mains) 2008

Ans. (c)

The Government of India Act, 1919, made the Indian Legislature bicameral for the first time. It was to consist of an Upper House named the Council of state and a Lower House named the Legislative Assembly. Council of State was composed of 60 members, of whom maximum 20 members could be official in accordance with section 18 of the Government of India Act, 1919. The lower house was called the Central Legislative Assembly and under section 19 of this Act, it originally provided for 140 members with 100 elected and 40 nominated. It is noteworthy that under the Rules made for the implementation of the 1919 Act, provision was made for 60 members with 33 elected and 27 nominated in the Council of State, while the number of members of the Central Legislative Assembly was increased first to 143 (102 elected & 41 nominated) and then to 145 (104 elected and 41 nominated). It is notable that one member in each house was elected from Berar out of the nominated members. Due to a member from Berar being nominated as the result of an election held in Berar, it has been included in the number of elected members in many mentions.

15. Which of the following Acts introduced a bicameral legislature at the Centre?

- (a) 1961 Act (b) 1917 Act

16. Consider the following statements:

- The Montagu Chelmsford Reforms of 1919 recommended granting voting rights to all the women above the age of 21.
- The Government of India Act of 1935 gave women reserved seats in legislature.

Which of the statements given above is/are correct?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only
(c) Both 1 and 2 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

I.A.S. (Pre) 2021

Ans. (b)

In 1918, when Britain granted limited suffrage to women property holders, the law did not apply to British citizens in other parts of the Empire.

Despite the All India Women's Deputation led by Sarojini Naidu to Edwin Samuel Montague, then Secretary of State, India women's demands were ignored in the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms. Though women were not granted voting rights, nor the right to stand in elections, the Government of India Act 1919 allowed Provincial Councils to determine if women could vote, provided they met stringent property, income, or educational levels. Hence, statement 1 is not correct. Statement 2 is correct as the Government of India Act, 1935 extended the principle of communal representation by providing separate electorates for depressed classes (scheduled castes), women and labourers (workers).

17. With reference to Indian Civil Services, which of the following statements is/are correct?

- Government of India Act, 1919 provided for a separate examination for the Indian Civil Service, which was to be held in India.

Both statements are correct. Following Lord Macaulay's Report of the select committee of the British Parliament, the concept of merit-based civil services in India was introduced in 1854. For this purpose, civil services commission was set up in London and competitive examinations started in 1855 in the London itself. Government of India Act, 1919, provided for a separate examination for the Indian Civil Service, which was to be held in India (started in 1922 first in Allahabad and later in Delhi). In 1941, in Indian Civil Service, the percentage of Indians was more as compared to the Europeans.

(c) Act of 1909 (d) Charter Act of 1853

U.P.P.C.S. (Pre.) 2023

Ans. (a)

According to the Act of 1919, the system of chamber of princes with 120 members was created. The Chamber of Princes was established by King-Emperor George V's Proclamation on 23 December 1919, after the Government of India Act 1919 was given royal assent.

The chamber was formed to provide a forum in which the rulers of the princely States of India could voice their needs and aspirations to the colonial government.

The annual meeting of the chamber of princes was presided over by the Viceroy of India. It was an advisory body. The first chancellor of the chamber was Maharaja of Bikaner Ganga Singh.

(c) The Government of India Act of 1935

(d) The Indian Independence Act of 1947

M.P.P.C.S. (Pre) 2017

23. The distribution of power between Centre and States as in the Constitution of India is based on which of the following plans?

The separation of power was made by the Government of India Act, 1935. It divided the legislative powers between central and provincial legislatures and replaced 'dyarchy in provinces with dyarchy at the centre'. The Act also envisaged the establishment of 'Federation of India' made up of both British India and some of the Princely States. However, this part was never implemented.

24. One amongst the following was not a salient feature of the Government of India Act, 1935:

- (a) The Act provided for an All India Federation
(b) Residuary subjects were allocated to provincial Legislatures.
(c) It marked the beginning of the Provincial Autonomy.
(d) It abolished Diarchy at the Provincial level and introduced it at the Centre.

R.A.S./R.T.S. (Pre) 2016

Residuary Subjects were neither allocated to the central nor provincial legislature. Residuary powers were vested in the Viceroy (Governor-General) of India. Thus (b) is not a salient feature of the Government of India Act, 1935.

25. Which among the following introduced the Provincial Autonomy in British India?

(b) Simon Commission

- (c) Government of India Act, 1935
(d) Government of India Act, 1919

30. With reference to the Government of India Act, 1935, consider the following statements:

1. It provided for the establishment of an All India Federation based on the union of the British Indian Provinces and Princely States.
2. Defence and Foreign Affairs were kept under the control of the federal legislature.

Which of the statements given above is/are correct?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only
(c) Both 1 and 2 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

I.A.S. (Pre) 2024

Ans. (a)

The Government of India Act, 1935 provided for the establishment of an All India Federation, by the name of the 'Federation of India', consisting of the British Indian Provinces (both Governor's Provinces and Chief Commissioners' Provinces) and Princely States as units. Hence, statement 1 is correct.

Under The Government of India Act, 1935, the concept of diarchy was introduced at the centre level. As per the Section 11(1) of the Act, the functions of the Governor-General with respect to Defence, Ecclesiastical Affairs, External Affairs, and Tribal Areas were to be exclusively exercised by him in his discretion (and thus these subjects were not kept under the control of the federal legislature). Hence, statement 2 is incorrect and option (a) is the correct answer.

However, in terms of Union-States relations, statement 2 may be correct, as subjects of Defence and External Affairs were part of the Federal List under the 1935 Act and Governor-General was also part of the federal legislature (as President of India is part of the Parliament). In this case option (c) will be the correct answer.

32. Which of the following was not one of the features of the Government of India Act, 1935?

- (a) Reconstruction of the Governor General's Executive Council
- (b) Provincial Autonomy
- (c) Appraisal of the Act of 1935
- (d) Proposal for Federation of India

70th B.P.S.C. Pre-2024

Ans. (c)

The Government of India Act of 1935, in its provisions for India's federation, included the proposal for the Governor-General's executive council and the inclusion of provincial autonomy, but the primary focus of the 1935 Act was not on the establishment of the judiciary. It laid the foundation for the division of powers between the Centre and the States, the establishment of a Central Legislature, and the assignment of powers in the states. The Act also proposed the strengthening of the Federal Government's authority over the provinces.
